

Six Names

Mission Note for Parents

Mission at a glance

Lab: Decision Lab

Ages: 11–15

Mission time: approximately 60–75 minutes

Delivery: Hybrid

Rhythm: Best completed in one sitting, with an optional 5–10 minute pause after the second consequence.

Your child works mainly with a printed Case Board, tracker and cards. The Academy reveals information, choices, consequences and later Evidence as the case unfolds.

Before the mission

WLA supplies:

- the Child Mission;
- Six Names Case Board;
- What's Changing? tracker and three counters;
- four Concern cards;
- three Judgement cards;
- Final Judgement card;
- Academy mission interactions and Mission Control.

Have ready:

- access to the WLA Academy;
- a pencil;
- printer access;
- scissors.

Before starting:

- print the mission materials;
- cut out the cards and counters;
- set out the Case Board, tracker and cards.

No other materials are required.

What your child will do

Your child works through a fictional school situation where an unexplained list of six pupils begins to fuel a claim about copying. They decide what to do before anyone knows what the list means.

As the case changes, they track what their choices affect. Later Evidence gives them clearer information, and they decide what they still stand by.

Safety and privacy

The case is entirely fictional. Your child is not asked to describe a real rumour, accusation or school situation.

No real names, school information, photographs or other identifying information are required.

Your role

You do not need to take an active role.

Avoid explaining what you think the list means or steering your child towards a particular response. The uncertainty and the consequences of their own decisions are part of the mission.

Practical help with printing or cutting is fine.

What this mission develops

The mission gives your child practice in making judgements before all the facts are known, noticing the effects of a choice and reconsidering when new evidence arrives.

They will practise:

- distinguishing evidence from an unverified explanation;
- weighing more than one legitimate concern;
- considering how a response may affect people and the wider situation;
- carrying the consequence of one decision into the next;
- reconsidering a judgement when relevant evidence arrives.

There is no single WLA “correct” response. Different choices protect different concerns and carry different trade-offs.

Completion and evidence

The mission is complete when your child has finished every step.

Their completed Six Names Case Board, What's Changing? tracker and Final Judgement make up their Mission Trail.

No upload is required. Their Mission Trail remains private unless they choose to share part of it.

What you may notice

Your child may:

- pause before choosing because more than one concern matters;
- change what they prioritise after seeing a consequence;
- distinguish what is known from what is assumed;
- stand by or reconsider an earlier decision when new evidence arrives.

One useful prompt

After the mission, you could ask:

Was there a point when new information changed how you viewed an earlier decision?
